Creative Writing and Literature

The Creative Writing and Literature programs at Long Beach City College are designed for both English majors and minors, as well as students interested in fulfilling basic GE or transfer requirements and students who wish to broaden their knowledge of the written word. Any student—whether pursuing an AA degree, planning on transfer to a four-year school, or taking courses for personal enrichment—is welcome in the English Department's Creative Writing or Literature classes.

In creative writing, we offer several UC/CSU transferable courses. Students may begin with our introductory course, English 26, which emphasizes the fundamentals of writing poetry and fiction. As a follow-up to English 26, we offer three workshop courses in the English 50, 51, and 52 series that focus on poetry, fiction, and the novel. Students may enroll in four semesters of instruction to develop writing projects in a workshop environment. Creative writing faculty lead critiques of student work and offer feedback for revision, culminating in a portfolio of the student's best work. Activities include reading and analyzing literature as a writer and refining craft through various writing exercises.

In our literature courses, students will find many opportunities to explore ideas, examine the culture from which these ideas sprang, and engage with the rich varieties of language. Literature courses are frequently offered in the evening to accommodate diverse schedules. We offer a full breadth of classes intended as an introduction to the study of literature, from Introduction to Literature/Composition (English 2) to specialty courses, focused around a particular genre, period, or region. Students can expect a full and proper introduction to the theories of literary study from a distinguished faculty.

What Our Students Say

- My experience in two literature courses taught me how different eras and people can still relate to how we live today. It was a great way to expand my knowledge and an even better way to continue my goal towards my English major. – Landy
- Creative writing brought me out of my comfort zone. I tried something completely different and loved it. Take a creative risk. – Tiffany
- We read American literature that brought both history and fascinating characters to life. – Melanie
- Creative writing courses are the best way to stay motivated as a writer and to flesh out your ideas. – Molly
- I had exceptional experiences in the English literature classes I took while at Long Beach City College. The professors are some of the best because they really care about their students and want to see them succeed, and they have a real passion for literature. At LBCC, I was introduced to a wide variety of authors and literary styles. I learned effective communication skills that will be extremely beneficial for the rest of my college career and life. – Veronica
- Taking a creative writing course put me in touch with all kinds of literary events. – Andrew
