FEATURED EVENTS:

K-12 Ethnic Studies Summit – March 10, 2022 at 8:30am-3:30pm

This event will give attendees the opportunity to learn about Ethnic Studies and ways to teach these courses in elementary, secondary and higher education settings. Workshops facilitated during the event will help participants understand the nuances of Ethnic Studies curriculum and learning outcomes as well as how to effectively teach related assignments. Workshops will be facilitated by veteran Ethnic Studies teacher/practitioners who can share best practices for course/development and teaching. This event will help with connect students to the LBCC Ethnic Studies and the Teacher Preparation Program, sparking interest within our campus, faculty, and local communities about the importance of these courses and how to implement them in various educational contexts.

RSVP Coming soon. Attendees must have vaccines on file for this in-person event.

Making the Most of Fieldwork – February 24, at 5:30pm on Zoom. Register <https://linktr.ee/lbfutureteacher>

The path to becoming a teacher is marked by multiple opportunities to get in the classroom and work with a mentoring teacher, students, and school community. This time often allows for reflection and implementation of core concepts and self-determination. This can also be a stressor in planning schedules and responsibilities. Fieldwork can lead to lifelong connections, job opportunities, and moments that craft our outlook on the profession. Our workshop will allow for discussion of approaching the task with a growth mindset, building relationships, and planning.

Mindfulness for Future Teachers - March 23, at 5:30pm on Zoom. Register <https://linktr.ee/lbfutureteacher>

The COVID-19 pandemic has brought new stresses and worries to our already complicated schedules. Join the Future Teachers Club as we walk through breathing, grounding and physical techniques to help us stay present and mindful of the situations in front of us. Coming from backgrounds from yoga, ayurvedic, and dance, we will honor these techniques as an act of self-care and communal care. We will also discuss accommodations and application to classroom teaching (virtual and physical).

Oh the Places We Went – Student Panel and Presentations from Professional Development - May 19, at 5:30pm on Zoom. Register at <https://linktr.ee/lbfutureteacher>

The Future Teachers Club members had the opportunity to attend various professional development activities and conferences this year. This workshop will be a knowledge share, informal conversation, and highlights from our students. Learn about the current outlook in ethnic studies, technology, and student-centered teaching practices from within the field. Moreover, students will share the applicability of these practices within their classroom experiences.
